WHAT MAKES ARE WE HAPPY YET? STAND OUT?

Are We Happy Yet? is nestled between medical, academic, and self-help communities. Lisa uses evidenced-based modalities rooted in common sense and delivered in a no-nonsense user-friendly language. AWHY? is intended for average citizens across the globe who hope to find personal happiness and create a better life for themselves and for their families.

AWHY? is a reputable guidebook filled with information, stories, surveys, worksheets, interventions, and tools that are designed to help the reader increase his or her “H-Factor.” Lisa provides insight and real-world solutions to harvest greater personal happiness and well-being through proven practice regardless of the deck of cards life has dealt us.

AWHY? is not traditional clinical psychology, academic rhetoric, or self-help drivel. Most psychotherapy focuses on our past and “the why” we are the way we are, while AWHY applies Positive Psychology techniques that reinforce what’s right with life, here and now, and illuminates “the how” to get where we want to go. Lisa shows readers how to experience life through a more positive lens, enhancing the way we live, love, work, and play.

ARE WE HAPPY YET? + PRESS RELEASE

POSITIVE PSYCHOLOGY EXPERT ON TAKING CONTROL OF YOUR OWN HAPPINESS—TODAY!

Major depressive disorder is the leading cause of disability in the U.S., affecting around 15 million adults a year, according to the Anxiety and Depression Association of America. Add the current controversial political and social climate to general everyday woes, and now, perhaps more than ever, Americans are in need of a lifeline.

Internationally recognized positive psychology coach and talk radio show host Lisa Cypers Kamen understands this, and is ready to help. Not only is she a sought-after expert in life-crisis triage, including addiction and trauma recovery, but she is a self-proclaimed “reformed depressed person.” She knows just how tough it can be to get out of the pit, and is determined to help as many people as possible do so.

“I did not wander into my happy place,” Cypers Kamen says about her own journey. “There was a personal evolution to achieving greater happiness after tremendous challenges. It took work, but it was a life-altering and liberating experience.”

Cypers Kamen is now revealing her breakthrough system for cultivating sustainable happiness and wellbeing, regardless of life’s drama, trauma or challenges, in her new book Are We Happy Yet? Eight Keys to Unlocking a Joyful Life — a fusion of science and heart, filled with proven tools and techniques for creating your very own “happiness revolution.”

Through practical tips, tools, and exercises, Cypers Kamen shows readers how to boost their “Happiness-Factor” to new levels and tap into the joy and peace they deserve. Through her wide-ranging decades-long career, she has redefined — for herself and for many others, worldwide — the pursuit of happiness, even during life’s most challenging times. Are We Happy Yet? draws on that expertise and shows readers how to take the applicable principles of positive psychology, and start using it in their daily lives.

“Positive psychology focuses on what’s right with life here, now and tomorrow, rather than ruminating on what’s wrong with it or what happened in the past,” adds Cypers Kamen. “Are We Happy Yet? helps readers embrace the absolute best parts of life, each and every day.”

Cypers Kamen has immediate availability for interview and commentary opportunities around the March 20, 2017 release of Are We Happy Yet?, which is also the United Nation's International Day of Happiness, and can discuss:

- Recovering from Post Inaugural Stress Syndrome (PISS'd Off): Practical steps to reclaiming happiness no matter what is happening around you
- Is happiness a pursuit or practice?
- Eight keys to unlocking more joy today
- De-stigmatizing psychological healthcare
- Are you numbing your feelings? Five positive ways to conquer stress without bingeing on food, drink or digital devices
- Less is more: Three reasons people who have less "stuff" are happier
- Reframing and transforming challenges: Why it's never too late to create a happy ending, and how to do it
- The Fine Whine: Five signs you complain too much, and how to fix it
- Seasonal Affect Disorder (S.A.D.): Managing the winter blues

LISA CYPERS KAMEN + TIP SHEET

EIGHT KEYS TO UNLOCKING MORE JOY TODAY

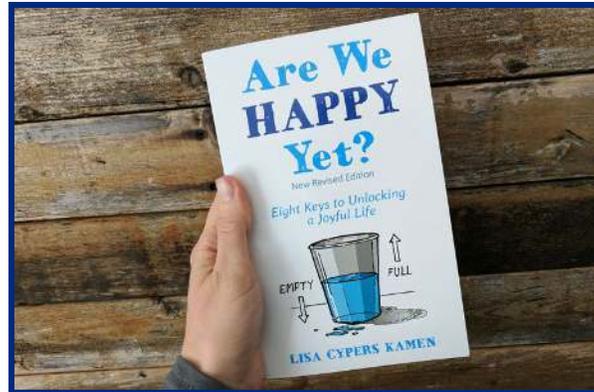

Have you thought about what brings you joy lately? It's easy to daydream about adventures and opportunities that are not possible in the moment, but it's what we do in the moment that counts most. It is the foundation for everything we hope to do in the future. Regardless of what you are pursuing, you should wish to pursue it with joy.

Finding out where to start with pursuing joy can be a challenge, but these eight tips to unlock more joy today are the start you need.

1. Life is tough, but joy is available to all by not attaching our expectations to money or material things we open up the possibility of gaining authentic joy from within. The two things most amazing about this type of joy is that no one can take it away from you, and everyone has the ability to find it. Joy is not an exclusive club—it's welcome to all.
2. Be your own guru what makes you feel inspired and excited? It's important to invest the time in understanding your behaviors and mannerisms. There is no other way to learn what you respond to and how certain things impact you. By doing this you are emotionally prepared for those more startling moments and better equipped to use your naturally-driven joy as a defense against the junk that may come your way. Joy creates optimism.

3. More is not always better it's natural to want nice things, but with these "things" comes responsibilities. Big cars and homes come with big bills. All those awesome salt and pepper shaker collections from the places you've visited take up a lot of space and time when you decide to dust them. Additionally, things like clutter and large obligations are often challenging because they don't necessarily give you more joy in the long run. Think before you buy.
4. We cannot control life, only ourselves it's good to have a plan in place in case something happens, but when you delve into the "what ifs" of life too intensely you are going to grow so distracted that you drop your joy along the way. Why spend time worrying today about tomorrow's unknowns (which are likely exaggerated in your mind)? Worry and joy are like oil and water—they just don't mix.
5. Our joy is our personal responsibility go to a mirror and take a look. You'll find something amazing, and you may have been looking for it for a long time. It's you. You are responsible for finding your joy. It's not a job that can be freelanced out or delegated to anyone else.
6. Choose activities and people that foster joy the world is our playground, regardless of what our physical abilities are. Seek out the activities and people that bring you joy, and cease these moments. You can do this best by engaging in activities and not being the bystander watching the parade go by, or viewing the action through the camera of your smart phone.
7. Treat yourself the way you wish to be treated if you don't show yourself respect through your thoughts and actions, you are setting a poor example of how you want others to treat you. This is impactful in our personal lives and our careers. You can show confidence and your expectations without being arrogant, and people will be inspired by this.
8. Know this: your joy requires internal work all of the visual and physical stimulation in the world cannot do as much good for you as ensuring that you are making sure you are internally healthy. Your thoughts, emotions, and love for yourself will impact every experience you have in life. So, if you want your life to be one of inspiration and joy, start by looking inside for the answers.

Changing the way we view ourselves and approach all aspects of our life to find more joy can be a tough challenge. It's good to know that all challenges grow easier with perseverance and time. By remaining resilient in your effort to connect with and maintain joy you'll be able to grow in amazing ways, many of which you likely are yet to consider.

ARE WE HAPPY YET? + BOOK EXCERPT

“IMPROVING MENTAL MUSCLE TONE”

These happiness exercises are designed to bulk up your emotional fitness and to help you focus on reprogramming your inner-thoughts so that you will feel more happy and positive.

- 1. Look in the mirror. Try to smile and think sad thoughts at the same time. Can't do it, can you? Exercise your smile muscles a bit each day, increasing the exercise time to 5-10 minutes more every day.
- 2. Step on a treadmill and crank it up to 4.0 mph. Turn up your iPod and try to walk fast or run on the treadmill and yet think sad thoughts. Can't do it, can you?
- 3. Blast some happy music in the car and then try to feel sad. Can't do it, can you? (Salsa music is my personal favorite.)
- 4. While driving in your car, alone preferably, put on one of your favorite CD's and sing along. No one can hear you, so you're safe if you can't carry a tune. Singing out loud makes you feel happier and it is impossible to feel sad. Try it!
- 5. Join a gym, take your dog on a daily walk, or take dance classes. Make a schedule that you will get some type of enjoyable physical exercise at least 3 to 4 times a week. Stick to that schedule no matter what happens. Studies show that exercise puts people in a better humor, especially those whose spirits were the lowest before they started to work out.
- 6. Call one friend and make a concerted effort to sound and be upbeat. Make plans to meet that person and do something fun together. Each day call another person, even a new acquaintance. If you are feeling lonely, reach out to someone you may have just met.
- 7. Join a bicycle club, a hiking club, a church group, a book club, a car club, a board game club, or bridge group—any positive activity that gets you out of the house and redirects your attention from thinking about yourself and your problems.

8. Get out of your comfort zone and do something different. Sign up for a cooking class or an exotic vacation.
9. Write down three things that you would love to do but have been too afraid to do. Sign up to go ballooning, river rafting, or parasailing. Join a ski club. Take scuba diving lessons.
10. Participate more in life and get outside of yourself. Become a political or animal rights activist. Train for a “fun run/walk” , a marathon, or some event that stretches your body and mind . Reach out to meet new people and make more diversified friends.
11. When you get in bed every night, before you fall asleep, make sure you identify at least one exciting reason to wake up in the morning.
12. Program your dreams. Decide what you want to dream about before you go to sleep. Or pose a question for your subconscious mind to answer while you slumber. Also set the intention to remember the dream and to receive clarity about an important issue.
13. Always go to sleep believing that when you wake up life will have a wonderful surprise for you. Believe it or not, you’ll get that surprise.
14. Write down when something is bothering you. Then write down one or more ways that you can alleviate the problem in a positive way. Put the paper away for 24 hours. After 24 hours, take out the paper and either take the action you wrote on the piece of paper or throw the piece of paper away and decide to let go of what you wrote that was bothering you.
15. Write down each of your problems in one sentence only, each on its own index card. Then arrange the index cards in order of importance. For each problem, write down 3 possible solutions. Start by tackling the first problem. Decide which is the best of the 3 solutions and then do it. When that problem is solved, tear up the index card and throw it away. Go on to the next index card.
16. Write each problem on a separate piece of paper. Once you have solved the problem, put it in a flameproof dish and light it on fire and burn it.

“A successful man is one who can lay a firm foundation with the bricks others have thrown at him.”
